GERMAN AEROPLANES MAKE DARING RAIDS TO WITHIN THIRTY MILES OF LONDON

London, April 16.—German aeroplanes this afternoon dropped bombs in Kent within thirty miles of London. First appearing over Hove, they cast a Canterbury, and about fifty miles from London they made their way rapidly toward London, and within a few minutes were reported over Canterbury and then over Dover and Sittingbourne, not more than 30 miles away. They dropped bombs on each of these towns.

This is the third German aerial attack on the eastern counties of England in the last thirty-six hours. The two previous attacks were made at night by Zeppelins.

At night, however, the attack is limited to the German aeroplanes. The first attack on the night of April 15, 1915, was made by a German Zeppelin in retaliation for a Zeppelin attack on Nancy.

A German report says French aeroplanes dropped bombs on several German towns unprotected by anti-aircraft guns.

London no longer considers it impossible that a raid by German aeroplanes on the night of April 16, 1915, will be made. The German aeroplanes have been seen in the night sky over London and the English coast.

Nevertheless, the public is skeptical of the reports for fear of Zeppelins. The English coast during the night of April 16, 1915, was dark and the reports of German aeroplanes were not confirmed.

In fact, on the night of April 16, 1915, the German aeroplanes were seen in the night sky over London and the English coast.

CATCHER OWENS HURT
Catcher Owens received a painful cut over the eye at Pike Field this afternoon when Pitcher Godwin's ball struck his face. Godwin was a left-hander when the strike shined for a first time. Owens was rushed to town in an automobile to have the wound treated.

Left—Automobile rank. Return for reward to City Garage.

New York, April 16.—Nelson W. Aldrich, for 30 years United States senator from Rhode Island and a republican leader in national politics, died of an apoplexy stroke at his home in Fifth Avenue here today. He had been ill of indigestion since yesterday afternoon. Until then he had been in excellent health. He was in his seventy-fourth year. Burial will be in Swan Pond Cemetery, Providence, R. I., Sunday afternoon.

Dr. John S. Thatcher, Mr. Aldrich's family physician, had left him less than half an hour before he died. Then Mr. Aldrich appeared to be recovering from his attack of indigestion. Soon after the physician left Mr. Aldrich suddenly became unconscious and died within a few minutes.

Members of his immediate family were present, including Mrs. Aldrich, Miss Aldrich and Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., her daughters and Mr. Aldrich, their son. These were at the bedside. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Mr. Aldrich's son-in-law, would not be reached in time.

VACCINATE YOUR BOON WHEN LITTLE

Farm and Foreword, the national farm paper published at Springfield, O., is presenting the facts about the ravages of cholera, together with the most practical suggestions as to how farmers can escape the greatest losses. On the subject of vaccination for the disease, the editorial article sets forth, as follows, the reasons why it is cheaper for farmers to vaccinate their hogs when they are small.

"To do the cheapest job of vaccination, do it as soon as possible after the pigs weigh fifty pounds. Give them the simultaneous treatment at that time and, except in rare cases, the immunity will be good for life. The bigger the hogs are when vaccinated, the less the vaccination will cost in proportion to their selling price."

"For example, we will say you vaccinate a 50 pound pig at a cost of 35 cents. When that pig grows up to weigh 250 pounds, you sell him for $1750. The cost of protecting that pig against cholera is only 2 per cent of the selling price according to plain arithmetic."

"Now suppose you vaccinate a 100 pound hog. That will cost you at least 60 cents. If you sell that hog at the weight of 170 pounds, and he brings $170, your vaccination has cost 5 per cent of the selling price, which is pretty high insurance. It is so high that the expense would hardly be justified unless there was cholera in the neighborhood and you were in danger of losing your hogs."

ON LAYING EGGS.

By George Fitch.

Laying eggs is the only talent which the hen possesses.

The hen is not handsome and is one of the world's poorest singers. She has no education and produces the poorest grade of thought turned out by any brain, large or small. A hen hasn't even enough intelligence to vote a straight ticket at elections and goodness knows that needs less brain power than anything else on earth. She has just one talent—she lays the best eggs there are.

Many people with only one talent sink their lives away in gluttony and decline to become useful to the human race. But the hen isn't built on this style. She uses her talent. Early and late year in and out she lays eggs, putting all the fervor and enthusiasm of her being into the process. By so doing she has become one of our most valued citizens and is regarded with great affection, especially when fried with cream gravy.

Man screeches with pride because he builds half a million automobiles a year. But the modest hen with her one talent makes the automobile business look like a few rusty nickels. If the automobile were to disappear tomorrow man would mourn and become exceedingly footsore. But if the hen were to suspend the publication of 44 million eggs and retire upon her reputation earth would hardly be worth living on. The annual value of the hen's work in the United States is greater than the value of the automobile, the hog or the boy crew.

This teaches us to appreciate our talent no matter how small it may be. Many a man with no ability except to make a very loud noise and keep it up for an hour at a time has run for seven-teen different offices and has eventually orated himself into congress by the vote of the weary people who couldn't get out of listening to him any other way.

The hen teaches us one more lesson. She reserves all her eggs until after they are laid. Man is not nearly this wise. He is forever slipping up the combined output of 150 hens—for next year—and buying poultry farm based on overconfidence and a few errors in multiplication.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

The Savannah News.

By the narrow majority of one vote the people of Florida escaped a prohibition campaign and election. The prohibition amendment was adopted by the lower house of the legislature by a very safe margin and came within one vote of being adopted by the Senate.

It is useless to speculate as to what would have been the fate of the amendment if it had been submitted to the people, but its friends believe that it would have been carried. Outside of the cities there is a very strong sentiment in favor of prohibition in Florida. And the sentiment against intoxicants is stronger in that state and in every other state of this country this year than ever before because of the action against them of some of the European belligerent governments.

Russia, early in the war, put a ban on vodka and recently the Russian Minister of Finance said that the Russian people were better off financially and in every other respect than ever before because of the ban. France has put the stamp of her disapproval on absolute and the British Parliament is even now considering the advisability of legislating against drink during the period of the war. The King and many high officials have banished it from their house holds.

Truly the prohibitionists of Florida missed their golden opportunity when their Senate refused to permit the people to express their sentiments on the liquor question. If they had been a little more strenuous they might have dominated the situation. And if they had been victorious in the legislature and at the ballot box they would have had the hearty sympathy of the prohibitionists of Georgia since at least one Florida city is the chief source of the liquor supply for a large section of this state.

"STOP MY SUBSCRIPTION!"

New York Times.

More attention than has yet been given to it is desired by the psychology of the people who, having seen something in a newspaper, usually an editorial article, with which they strongly disagree immediately write and mail an angry letter announcing the firm intention to take that paper no more.

The apparent purpose of this action—assuming it to be carried out—is to punish the expression of the resented opinions by withdrawing a fraction of the paper's revenue, but underlying that also is probably a desire, conscious or unconscious, to inspire fear or other losses of the same kind and so to coerce the paper by an appeal to its material interests, into a reversal of its policy and attitude on the question at issue.

Of course, such a reversal for such a reason would be dishonest as well as cowardly, but what prohibits the stopping of his subscription doesn't think of that. And how hard to explain is it that willingness should be without the awareness to hear what can be said against his own views or conclusions? Either his confidence in his own judgment is weak or he prefers to hold to notions already accepted. He is not at all sure of whether they are right or wrong.

The reader who will not take a paper with all the bitterness of which he cannot agree does not want a newspaper at all, or to know what can be known about the subjects he considers important or interesting—he wants a partisan organ that will keep him uncomfortable. Twilight. People of that kind were once numerous, but they are scarce nowadays and they get fewer every year.

EGOTISTS AND OTHERS.

The Outlook.

Men detest egotists because they are absorbed in themselves and that particular form of selfishness is not only offensive, but ridiculous; it takes a great deal of genius to carry off egotism, and no amount of genius to carry it very far. And men delight in poking fun at conceit, which is a form of self-exaggeration. Unless he has gifts of mind, the conceited man is more or less of a bore, and the contrast between what he is and what he thinks he is forms a standing challenge to tell him the bald truth about himself. Great ability often goes with egotism, but conceit is, as a rule, the besetting sin of the man whose abilities are below the level of his ambitions. Such a man may have good intentions and capacity adequate for good work, but he is rarely taken seriously, and everybody is tempted to puncture his pretensions. Egotism is a fundamental fault of character; conceit is often the superficial weakness of those who lack self-knowledge.

TIME TO CALL A HALT.

Brooklyn Eagle.

Ambassador von Bernstorff's note has been classified. It has been sponsored by those who sent him to this country. Responsibility for it, therefore, is not personal. It has been assumed by the German government.

This makes matters worse, instead of better. It eliminates the individual. It substitutes a country for a plenipotentiary from whom almost anything was to be expected.

It is hardly necessary to amplify the classification. The note has no purpose other than that of humiliating or inciting or creating trouble here.

As a fabrication from an Embassy, unsanctioned, or disclaimed or repudiated, it could be dismissed as a characteristic blunder. As an attempt to inflame, ratified, instead of discontinued, it is serious.

Formally, ostensibly, it is addressed to our State Department. Really, it is an appeal to what the Sun calls the large and influential element of our citizenship which now calls itself German-American.

The answer to it should be unequivocal, unambiguous, and, however courteous in terms, calculated to discourage repetition. It should be short and sharp and decisive.

The Washington State Department is not a branch of any foreign office. Nor should—or will—it tolerate hectoring or lecturing from abroad.

As was stated by the Eagle yesterday, there is a limit to endurance. The same may be said of patience and forbearance. It is time to call a halt.

Milk in the Philippines.

Farm and Fireside says: "Milk in the Philippines (except Manila) is obtained mostly from goats and carabao. A good carabao gives a gallon of milk a day. In Manila cows' milk sells for about 20 cents a quart, and carabao's milk for 15 cents."

FIVE MOONLIGHT SCHOOLS OPENED

Montgomery, Ala., April 15.—Five moonlight schools are now being operated in Alabama as a part of the campaign to stamp out adult illiteracy from the state. One of the schools is near Blocton in Bibb county, one is near Anniston in Calhoun county, a third is near Reform in Pickens county, while Shelby county boasts of two. The teachers are employed in the public schools and are giving their services free of charge to those who attend the moonlight schools. Reports show that the ages of the pupils range from 10 to seventy years.

Where The New Things Are Shown First

ALLIABILITY OF MAJORITIES

Kansas City Journal
Some big thoughts were advanced at the recent meeting of the Kansas City Bar Association, which was addressed by Martin W. Littleton and Henry Wallman of New York and Senator James A. Reed and R. R. Brewster of this city. It would be difficult even were it not invidious, to make any comparisons as to the relative "bigness" of the subjects expressed, but certainly none was more opportune than Mr. Littleton's trenchant comments on the "alliability" of the majority. The disingenuous New York or Congressmen combated the conception of the prevalent at this time that the majority can do no wrong; that whatever the people in their sovereign capacity, by a vote of 51 per cent or more, decide upon is not only inevitable law but is fully right.

This is the crux of the evil system of ethics and economics, so far as that system has any cry at all. For the most part, the be-all and end-all of Roosevelt's social gospel is this alleged "alliability" of the majority, and in preaching it in season and out of season, he has turned to himself, following that, failing to consider the Republican party, split it wide open and put a party in the hands of a cabal of the aristocracy whose rule has well-nigh ruined the country. The old idea of inalienable rights, upon which the Declaration of Independence is based, was founded upon the fact that the majority of the people have the right to alter or amend the government. The only right they recognize without question is the right of the majority, when they, in the last analysis, rule the country, to make any change they wish. The majority has been right in the past of the fundamental issues of the declaration of which resulted in radical changes in the organic law. The majority of the American people favored slavery. It was the majority that did not believe in any effort to free the negro. John Brown was hanged for a crime that was not his. The majority of the people of this country, when they voted for the passage of the 13th amendment, were not only very far from being a majority, but they were a minority. If Lincoln had been elected in 1860, he would have been elected in 1860, and an emancipation platform, he had another method of solving the problem.

Mr. Littleton spoke convincingly in favor of restoring the constitutional right which not even the votes of a majority of the people can take away. This is a representative government, and the majority necessarily determines the course of the government. The majority of the people of this country, when they voted for the passage of the 13th amendment, were not only very far from being a majority, but they were a minority. If Lincoln had been elected in 1860, he would have been elected in 1860, and an emancipation platform, he had another method of solving the problem.

REPUBLICAN FOREBODING

(Charleston News and Courier)
The New York Tribune reports in all sincerity, perhaps to serve a special end in the New York Legislature—expresses grave anxiety concerning Republican prospects. It says that the Republican Legislature at Albany is endangering the success of the whole party in 1916. "All over the United States," it declares, "men and women are asking themselves what are the spirit, the purpose, the mental and the moral force of those who are leading the Republican party recently returned to control in certain States, but still a minority party in the Congress. They are asking this question because they have yet to make up their minds whether to return to a party to which they once belonged and from which they were driven in 1912, believing that it had become blind to the needs of the people and the highest standards of politics and public life which they saw about them." What these men and women are asking is not at all new. It is the old question of the larger part of the Progressive the chance of a Republican victory in 1916 is not overwhelming.

Style Column Correct Clothes and Toggery for Spring and Summer Wear

SELECTED STRAWS

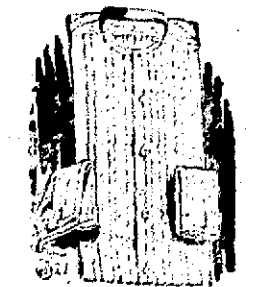

Split and Sewn Braids both high and medium crowns—plain and saw edges are stylish and in as much favor as ever, the high crown is more popular, however, and is affected by smart dressers. The band is half way instead of three quarters, making a distinction from last year's styles. Fancy braids and soft braids find much favor and are worn by many who want to be "different."

GENUINE PANAMAS, Bank-oks, Leghorns, Porto Ricans, Manillas, and Javays will be very popular during the coming season. O. P. Green, the leading toggery, is showing a very extensive line of the foregoing styles at prices ranging from $2.90 to $10.00

These styles this year are more natural and shapely than ever. There is a cool, comfortable look about good footwear and the styles are the neatest and handsomest ever shown. Hanan & Son, and Crockett's Shoes sold by O. P. Green are especially attractive and a glance into their window will reveal some stunning numbers. The prices range from $4.50 to $7.00.

Palm Beach and Silk and Mohair and Tropic Grass Suits are coming out this year in wonderful colorings and styles. All the new tones of grey, blue and hair stripes being shown in these cool comfortable garments, popular prices at $7.00 to $10.00 at GREEN'S TOGGERY.

All the latest patterns in smart neckwear, Manhattan Shirts and Toggery.

Our Boys' Department is showing a full line of summer goods for youths in Hats, Shoes and Clothing. Bring the Boy here to be fitted out right.

HOW TO CHOOSE FISH AND MEAT

In choosing poultry the age of the bird is the principal thing to consider. The best chickens are plump on the breast and back, with smooth, yellow legs, skin that tears easily, and the lower part of the breastbone soft and pliable. If the bird selected has a full of clean feathers at the knees and neck the buyer will be certain of its excellence, for only the highest-priced chickens are sold in this way. Cold storage chickens, which are practically poisonous to delicate stomachs, look bristled or very yellow, and the meat is dry and generally tasteless.

A young turkey may be known by its short spurs and black and smooth legs, and the age of a young duck told by tearing the skin of the foot between the toes. If it comes easily apart the duck is young; if the skin stretches like rubber the bird is old. The good eating goose is one whose windpipe makes a crackling sound under pressure between the fingers, and whose underwing skin breaks through delicately when the thumb is pressed against it. All poultry should hang for 48 hours in a cool place after the killing. If it is cooked before the blood is not properly drained off, the flesh will be tough and unwholesome.

The dry pickled fast tastes 9 percent better than the one which has been scalded for the removal of the feathers. The plucking is easier done while the bird is still warm, and if the feathers are removed before hanging up for the day and night it will be all the sweeter. The rule applies to all birds, domestic or wild, though where a wild turkey or duck needs to be kept for two or three weeks before cutting it need not be drawn. The bones like birds hang up by the bill, when this gives way on the bird drops to the ground, so that it is ready for cutting.

Old fowls or geese are much more tender if rubbed outside and inside with salt and left this way over night. A final good wash with soda will make the flesh at once delicate. An old turkey may also be rubbed with a sweet night, and be treated, as well, to several teaspoons of vinegar. When ready to cook it wash all the vinegar away and rub the bird finally with a fresh egg yolk. Golden fowls and rabbits are not fit to eat unless they have been kept hanging in a cool place quite 10 days after being killed.

The freshness of fish may easily be told, even in the coldest weather. Look always for red in the gills. For fish, whole eyes and far bright scales. Never take a fish which looks dull and dead for this means it has been a long time out of water. The safe choice is made from those lying on the table and not from the box. Trust the nose a little, too. If the fish smells rank, faintly suggestive of curran, it is spoiled. It may be good, but frozen and refused to be used in its true condition. Price lists in a hot kitchen would make a fish unobtainable. Before cooking any fish wash it thoroughly in cold, salted water. It must then be carefully dried on a clean towel, or it will be soggy when cooked.

Economy, simplicity and efficiency makes the Ford a universal utility. A utility because it serves everybody—doctor, farmer, salesman and banker. In every business, or as a pleasure car, the Ford proves reliable and economical. Low first cost—$300 less than last year, and the plan of sharing profits with the buyers—and low upkeep expense, are reasons why it pays to own a Ford. They serve and save. Buyers will share in profits if we sell 300,000 new Ford cars between August, 1914 and August, 1915.

DR. SANDERS SAYS HE IS NOT GOING TO RESIGN

Montgomery Advertiser, April 16.—"The statement that I will resign as president of the state board of health is absolutely false," said Dr. W. H. Sanders today in discussing Dr. C. S. Yarbrough's interview in the Birmingham Age-Herald.

Dr. Sanders expressed surprise at the statement of Dr. Yarbrough, and indicated in the most emphatic terms that he has no intention of tendering his resignation as head of the health department. On the other hand he made it very clear that he intends to fight and expressed the belief that the forthcoming meeting in Birmingham of the State Medical Association would result in a complete victory for the department over which he presides.

Equal confidence in the result of the meeting was expressed by other physicians of the health department, namely, by Dr. W. W. Dickmore, who has charge of the Rockefeller Institute work.

W. W. Eddins of Crosby was in Dothan today for a while.

Indications are that the meeting this year which will make the forty-second annual session, will be more largely attended than any in the history of the organization. It is expected that a vigorous fight will be made on the present health system.

Especially resistant to shock, strain and vibration, the Ford is the sturdiest, most durable car in the world. Vanadium steel, heat-treated by the Ford process, accounts for the strength and light weight of the Ford car. Strong, light, simple and efficient, the Ford gives service and satisfaction to more than 700,000 owners every day, at an average cost of two cents a mile for operation and maintenance.

Buyers will share in profits if we sell at retail 300,000 new Ford cars between August 1914 and August 1915.

Cartoon Magazine For May.

How difficult Uncle Sam is finding it to be everybody's friend and to preserve strict neutrality is shown in a remarkable series of cartoons in the May Cartoon Magazine. While England is complaining bitterly that we are trying to snatch away her trade, Germany protests against our exportation of arms to the allies. In one German cartoon Uncle Sam is seen selling implements of warfare to Death, "not because I need the money, but to bring about peace sooner." Another German cartoon depicts a wounded soldier holding an American-made shell in his hand. The caption reads: "Those sympathetic Americans," while on the left is the inscription: "Brave Germans, we pray for you."

The events of the previous month—the hesitation of Italy, the bombardment of the Dardanelles, the fall of Przmyśl, the massing of the armies for the spring campaign, and other topics are fully treated in cartoon and comment. A group of interesting

Japanese cartoons shows how the Japs themselves regard their "Monroe Doctrine" in China. One amusing cartoon depicts China as a baby and Japan as a mermaid. The latter is holding out a jacket—the Japanese demands—and calling after the infant: "Don't be naughty, or you'll catch cold." In another cartoon Japan is seen administering some medicine to China, which "will be good for what ails her."

Some of Will Dyson's striking cartoons are reproduced. Mr. Dyson is the Englishman whose work has brought home to King George the realization that the "twilight of the kings" is falling, and has caused attempts on the part of the British government to suppress such delineations.

James Melvin Lee, director of the department of journalism of New York University, contributes the second of his articles on "Wordless Journalism," treating of the cartoons that help make history during the early period of the republic. "Zim," the veteran cartoonist, has a few pages of "homemade philosophy," illus-

CALOMEL IS MERCURY! IT SICKENS! ACTS ON LIVER LIKE DYNAMITE

"Doan's Liver Tonic" Starts Your Liver Better Than Calomel and Doesn't Sicken or Make You Sick.

Listen to me! Take no more sickening, salivating calomel when bilious or constipated. Don't lose a day's work! Calomel is mercury or quicksilver which causes necrosis of the liver. Calomel, when it comes into contact with your liver causes it to break down. This is when you feel that awful sickening and cramping. If you are sluggish and "stuck out," if you are constipated and bowels constipated, if you have headache, dizziness, coated tongue, or stomach sour, or if you feel generally unwell, Doan's Liver Tonic is the remedy.

Here's my guarantee—Go to any drug store and get a 50-cent bottle of Doan's Liver Tonic. Take a spoonful to-night and if it doesn't straighten you right up and make you feel fine and vigorous by morning I want you to go back to the store and get your money. Doan's Liver Tonic is not a medicine, it is a food, and it is entirely vegetable, therefore it can not sicken or make you sick. I guarantee that one spoonful of Doan's Liver Tonic will put your sluggish liver to work and clean your bowels of that sour bile and constipated waste which is clogging your system and making you feel miserable. I guarantee that a bottle of Doan's Liver Tonic will keep your entire family feeling fine for months. Give it to your children. It is harmless, doesn't gripe and they like it because it tastes like
